

	Page
Abstract	iii.
Introduction	1
i. The Definitional Problematic of Democracy	1
ii. Ethics and the Infinite	14
iii. Overview	35
1. The Lacanian Subject	47
1.1 Lacan's Return to Descartes	49
1.2 The Veil of Alienation	61
1.3 The Subject and the Signifying Chain	68
1.4 The Disunity of the Subject	73
1.5 The Subject of Desire	79
1.6 The Lack in the Other	87
1.7 Jouissance and the Impossibility of Wholeness	94
1.8 objet petit a	103
1.9 Fantasy	109
2. Lacanian Ethics	125
2.1 Giving Ground Relative to One's Desire	126
2.2 Feeling Guilty: The Function of the Super-ego	130
2.3 Being Guilty: Das Ding, Desire and The Law	137
2.4 The Impossible Founding Moment of the Law	146
2.5 Speech and Desire: The Necessity of the Subject to the Law	150
2.6 Interpreting Lacan's Edict	160
2.7 The Locus of Judgement in Lacan's Ethics	167
2.8 The Gap of Causality	174

3. Towards the other	190
3.1 Freud's Neighbour	191
3.2 Hegel and the Master-Slave Relationship	196
3.3 The Nebenmensch	202
3.4 The Poetry of Courtly Love	208
3.5 The Case of Dora	213
3.6 Saint Martin and the other's Good	226
3.7 Non-preferential love	232
3.8 The Same and the other	240
3.9 Badiou's Critique of Levinas	251
3.10 The (Im)possibility of the other	272
4. The Subject of Democracy	282
4.1 Ethics and Politics	284
4.2 The Indeterminacy of Rights	294
4.3 The Question of Democracy	303
4.4 The Encounter with the Real	312
4.5 The Impossibility of Certainty	316
4.6 The Subjective Assumption of Democracy	322
4.7 Badiou's Advocacy of Non-participation	324
4.8 The Non-example of Antigone	333
4.9 The Limit of Antigone	357
4.10 In Conclusion ~ Eating the book	369
Bibliography	384